Old Court Chapel

Old Court Chapel of Ease is a beautifully preserved 17th century listed building.

The church nestles quietly within the estate providing an intimate space for holding religious ceremonies.

As part of the Diocese of Down and Dromore the chapel is privately owned which allows for any mainstream religions to exchange their vows here, making it an all inclusive wedding venue option.

The Garden Room

Our Garden Room is hidden away in the gardens, boasting lovely views of the lough. It's an ideal indoor setting for humanist ceremonies and drinks receptions, keeping your guests warm and dry while still feeling connected to the garden atmosphere. While it usually serves as a backup for those less-than-perfect weather days, you're welcome to use it anytime, no matter the forecast!

Reception

The yurt-inspired banqueting hall was designed and handcrafted by the owner, it is an exceptionally original venue. It is light and airy with a high ceiling and comfortably seats 120 guests.

In addition to the main hall, the restored stables and cow barn offer supplementary space for guests to socialise and unwind. Here you will discover a dance floor and a bar.

The venue can be set up a day prior to your event, allowing ample time for decoration whether it's traditional or a bit more quirky.

Adjacent to the barn, an outdoor area with stretch tent provides guests with a sheltered space, it is the perfect spot to relax in the evenings and chat with friends while taking a rest from dancing.

The Gardens

With several acres of natural gardens, including wildflower borders and long sweeping lawns leading to the shore, our venue offers an idyllic space for your drinks reception or outdoor ceremony.

It is the perfect setting to capture photos, with so many opportunities to seize beautiful moments, a photographer's dream come true!

The Food

The catering company plays a vital roll in your wedding day as they oversee the event and take care of the dining aspects, including setting up the tables and providing all necessary equipment.

By hiring a catering company, you can save time and energy in planning your big day, as they handle all the details related to food and service, allowing you to focus on other important aspects of your wedding preparations.
